Conditional Admission Track

The conditional admission track is for Master’s students in research track, who submit their candidacy in the final year of their Master's studies, prior to receiving final grades and diploma.

Application process and implementation of studies:

1. Submission of application, as detailed here.

2. Discussion of the disciplinary committee and updating the candidate and the advisor regarding the committee's decision.

3. If the candidate is accepted, the process will continue in two stages:

   a) The actual beginning of studies is conditional upon the presentation of an official confirmation that the candidate has submitted all the assignments for a Master's degree (exams in courses / papers / submission of a thesis).

   The presentation of this certificate will enable submission of a study form, which means registration as a student on conditional status, which enables registering for courses and beginning to research.

   Note: It is recommended that candidates wishing to begin their doctoral studies at the beginning of the first or second semester, will complete the submission of all Master's assignments at least two weeks before the date on which they wish to begin their studies. This will ensure there will be enough time necessary to obtain the required certificate and submit the study form punctually.

   b) The final records of studies and the certificate of eligibility for a Master's degree must be presented no later than 6 months from the date of commencement of doctoral studies. Then the final decision on acceptance for doctoral studies will be made.

Please note that the period of time in which a student will be registered on conditional status (from the date of submitting the study form until the approval of the final acceptance) will be included in the 5-year period of doctoral studies.
